Fractal Bryan Matthews

Christopher Wilton is finishing his last year of college. He's poor, running out of food, and his favorite bar won't reopen after Daylight Savings. Desperate, he responds to an ad in his school newspaper for human scientific experimentation. Soon after, he begins to discover the true nature of the experiment, and leads him to question the meaning of his existence. Fractal was written in 21 days during the National Novel Writing Month in November of 2008. The goal of NaNoWriMo is to write 50,000 words in thirty days, and thousands of people around the world participate every year. This is Bryan's fourth attempt and third success in NaNoWriMo. This is a rough draft of a novel, and Bryan has absolutely no idea when he will edit it and attempt to get it published for real.
